ELECTRIC RAILWAY.

A Large Turnout of Yale Citizens and Farmers at the Meeting Tuesday Afternoon

Much enthusiasm was manifest at the big railroad meeting held in Central hall, Tuesday afternoon. In the neighborhood of four hundred men and women from Yale and the farming community around here were present.

J. E. Beavis occupied the chair and spoke at some length on the advantages to be derived by being connected with Detroit by an electric line through the Thumb of Michigan, and why every citizen of Yale and surrounding country should get busy and grasp this opportunity to become in touch with the great metropolis of the state.

Neil Grant, representing the Detroit Board of Commerce, was introduced by the chairman. In his talk he stated that the organization which sent him out were anxious to get in touch with every section of the state by electric or steam roads and are doing their utmost to help the good work along.

John H. Allerdyce, promoter of the new electric railroad from Detroit to Fraser, Armada, Memphis, Emmett, Old Brockway, Yale and on north to Harbor Beach, was called upon and in his fair, honest, straightforward way told the people what the company proposed to do and also what they expected in return. He informed his hearers that sixteen miles of roadbed had been graded from Fraser to Armada, the survey to Yale was staked out, Memphis and Emmett were busy securing the required bonus and rights of way, and that if Yale raised $25,000 bonus and secured the rights of way asked, he would be safe in saying that cars would be running into Yale next fall.

Harry J. Weber made the crowning speech of this successful meeting. To say that he is an orator in the right sense of the word would be stating it none too strongly. He represented a big enterprising man in a large and rapidly growing city, a city that is expected to reach the million mark in population within a few years. Mayor Marx is the big man we refer to and Detroit is the city which has progressed rapidly during the past ten years and at the present time is increasing in population at the rate of two hundred fifty families a week. Mr. Weber put a great deal of stress upon the possibilities and probabilities now in sight and with forethought the men who hold the reins of government in that city are looking ahead and preparing to feed the multitude of people who are steadily coming in. He said that the Mayor, whose spokesman he was, urged him to place extra stress on the matter of helping Detroit by securing the Detroit, Armada & Northern Ry, and this city in return would help every section along the route.

Committees will be selected this week and the work of soliciting the bonus and rights of way will be started next week. Let no one turn down this proposition. Your mile may be the bringing of the electric railroad. All get busy.

Work of County Agriculturist

The time last week was devoted largely to institute work. On Monday, the Round-up in Sanilac county was attended at Crosswell where the breeding of live stock was discussed. This meeting was well attended considering the weather, and splendid interest was shown by those present. Tuesday and Wednesday were occupied with the St. Clair County Institute at Port Huron. While the attendance was not all that could be desired, the state speakers were well pleased with the attitude of those present, and stated that they had never talked to a more appreciative audience.

Friday a talk was given on "Feeding the Dairy Herd" at the Round-up Institute at Saginaw. This was really the largest and one of the best meetings it has ever been my privilege to attend.

Thursday was spent at the meeting of the Union Farmer's Club at the home of J. O. Cook in Mussey township. There were about fifty people present and a very interesting and helpful meeting was held. Assistance was given with the question box and other matters pertaining to the work of the Farmers' Federation were discussed.

An important matter that should be kept in mind by all interested in the agricultural welfare of the county is the annual meeting of the St. Clair County Farmers' Federation in the Court Room of the Federal Building Wednesday, February 23. Every agricultural organization is entitled to be represented at this meeting by three delegates. These include all such organizations as the Granges, Farmers' Clubs, Greener Arbors, etc., and it is hoped that the greater portion of the organizations of the county will be represented. These delegates will be the voting members, but everyone who is interested in the movement is invited to be present. Dr. Eben Mumford, State Leader of County Agents, and possibly Prof. R. J. Baldwin of the Michigan Agricultural College will be present and address the meeting.

C. L. Brody, County Agent
